THE SESSION

Chip stocks led the market lower on Thursday as crude oil jumped. The S&P 500 fell 0.46% to 7,766 and the Nasdaq 1.25% to 27,195, while the Dow edged up 0.10% to 51,232; the VIX rose to 15.58. Technology was the weakest of the eleven S&P 500 sectors and energy led. NVIDIA, AMD, Marvell, Credo and TSMC each fell between 2.9% and 3.9% as concerns over higher rates and the cost of financing the AI buildout weighed on the group, and the prospect of Broadcom lining up about $50 billion of financing for OpenAI sharpened that concern. Brent rose about 3% to roughly $103 a barrel after trading above $105 earlier in the session, as attacks on shipping in the Strait of Hormuz and a cut in U.S. output tied to hurricane activity renewed supply worries; the President said the U.S. would not strike Iran before the November 3 midterm elections. The official 10-year

Treasury yield was 5.22%, down from 5.28% on Wednesday. Governor Waller said more rate increases will probably be needed, with timing flexible, and futures pricing implied about a 68% chance of a December increase. IBIT fell 2.01% and ETHA 4.13%.

The Dividend Strategy rose 0.38%, ahead of SPY's 0.42% decline by 0.80 point and behind DVY's 1.41% gain by 1.03 points, with sixteen of twenty-five holdings higher. Constellation Energy was the largest drag, falling 4.85% to $285.07 and subtracting about 0.35 point as investors took profits after Tuesday's gain of more than 12% on its nuclear power agreement with Google. Lam Research fell 2.71% and Caterpillar 2.18%, subtracting about 0.08 and 0.06 point. SS&C Technologies rose 2.48%, ADP 2.55% and S&P Global 1.91%, adding about 0.18, 0.16 and 0.10 point.

A rise in the cost of capital tends to test the most heavily financed corners of a market first. Owners of cash-generative businesses tend to be better positioned to absorb that rotation. Think Like an Owner.

The Growth Portfolio fell 1.36%, behind IUSG's 1.19% decline by 0.17 point, with eight of twenty-five holdings higher. Vistra was the largest drag, falling 6.33% to $156.16 and subtracting about 0.38 point as independent power producers pulled back after Tuesday's rally. Hut 8 fell 10.87% and NVIDIA 2.94%, subtracting about 0.26 and 0.21 point.

ServiceNow rose 1.35%, Agnico Eagle 1.95% and Chevron 3.15%, adding about 0.13, 0.11 and 0.09 point as crude climbed. On the year, the Dividend Strategy stands at +17.59% against DVY's +12.77%, a +4.82-point spread, with SPY at +14.39%; the Growth Portfolio stands at +23.03% against IUSG's +17.29%, a +5.74-point spread.
