THE SESSION

Stocks extended their advance on Tuesday as nuclear power producers rallied and Treasury yields eased.

The S&P 500 rose 0.59% to 7,820, its first close above 7,800, while the Nasdaq gained 0.45% to 27,600 and the Dow 0.49% to 51,521; the VIX slipped to 15.0. Google and Constellation Energy agreed to a 20-year contract for 890 megawatts of new nuclear capacity, to come from up-rates at 11 Constellation reactors in Illinois, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, alongside a 15-year agreement for 2,700 megawatts from the existing fleet. Talen Energy rose 12.43% and the utilities sector fund XLU 2.98%. Marvell rose 5.81% after setting a fiscal 2031 revenue target of $70 billion to $90 billion at its investor day, while chip-equipment makers eased, with KLA down 4.54% and Applied Materials 2.21%. The 10-year Treasury yield eased to 5.27% from Monday's 5.31% ahead of Wednesday's release of the Federal Reserve's September meeting minutes. Brent dipped below $98 a barrel early, following last Friday's Group of Seven agreement to release 100 million barrels from emergency reserves over four months, before recovering to about $101.

The Dividend Strategy gained 0.83%, ahead of DVY's 0.54% by 0.29 point and of SPY's 0.55% by 0.28 point, with seventeen of twenty-five holdings higher. Constellation Energy was the largest contributor by a wide margin, rising 12.25% to $300.40 and adding about 0.79 point of the sleeve's 0.83 on the Google agreement, which carries more than $4.3 billion of new investment by Constellation. NextEra Energy added 2.10% and S&P Global 1.33%. Stryker was the largest drag, falling 2.36% to $278.50 and subtracting about 0.12 point on the day it named President and Chief Operating Officer Spencer Stiles to succeed Kevin Lobo as chief executive on January 1, 2027. Lam Research fell 3.44% to $333.89 as equipment makers eased, and Abbott declined 1.93%, neither on a company-specific catalyst.

A 20-year contract for added output from reactors already running is the kind of revenue visibility an owner can underwrite. The day's leadership came from contracted earnings power, not from the tape. Think Like an Owner.

The Growth Portfolio gained 1.42% while IUSG rose 0.58%, ahead by 0.84 point, with eighteen of twenty-five holdings higher. Vistra was the largest contributor, rising 10.77% to $160.50 and adding about 0.57 point as investors repriced nuclear generators around the Google–Constellation agreement, a day after the Department of Energy issued the company a conditional commitment for a loan of up to $4.2 billion. Marvell added 5.81% and about 0.25 point after projecting fiscal 2031 revenue of $70 billion to $90 billion, while Credo gained 3.93% and Fortinet 3.88%. Robinhood was the largest drag, falling 1.85% and subtracting about 0.10 point. The digital-asset ETFs IBIT and ETHA slipped 0.14% and 0.65%. On the year, the Dividend Strategy stands at +18.34% against DVY's +11.67%, a +6.67-point spread, with SPY at +15.14%; the Growth Portfolio stands at +25.94% against IUSG's +18.99%, a +6.95-point spread.
