THE SESSION

Stocks gave back part of Monday's rebound on Tuesday as a hotter-than-expected inflation report revived the prospect of another Federal Reserve rate increase in December. The S&P 500 fell 0.38% to 7,521, the Nasdaq fell 0.74% to 25,066 and the Dow fell 0.30% to 52,232; the VIX spiked above 21 during the session. Consumer prices rose 0.4% in October against a 0.3% forecast, and core prices rose 0.3% for a third straight month against a 0.2% forecast; no annual rate was published because last year's shutdown halted data collection. Federal Reserve Governor Christopher Waller said before the release that a half-point December increase should be considered if core inflation printed 0.3% or higher. Brent fell 1.17% to $91.49 a barrel, its lowest settlement since Aug. 31. The 10-year Treasury yield rose to 4.98%. Bitcoin fell 1.86% to $73,854; IBIT fell 1.51% and ETHA fell 3.27%.

The Dividend Strategy rose 0.54%, ahead of DVY's 0.20% gain by 0.34 point and SPY's 0.36% decline by 0.90 point, with fifteen of twenty-five holdings higher and ten lower. Broadcom (+3.91%), Lockheed Martin (+2.54%), and Old Republic (+2.27%) added about 0.25, 0.11, and 0.09 point, respectively; Constellation Energy (−3.02%), Caterpillar (−2.39%), and NatWest (−1.68%) subtracted about 0.16, 0.06, and 0.05 point.

The Growth Portfolio fell 1.61%, behind IUSG's 0.79% decline by 0.82 point, with nine of twenty-five holdings higher. NXP Semiconductors added about 0.10 point, Taiwan Semiconductor about 0.08 point after October revenue rose nearly 60% from a year earlier, and CNX Resources about 0.07 point; Nvidia, Agnico Eagle, and Freeport-McMoRan subtracted about 0.32, 0.31, and 0.21 point, respectively.
