THE SESSION

Stocks finished little changed on Tuesday as semiconductor weakness and a mixed start to bank earnings offset a lower Treasury yield. The S&P 500 slipped 0.02% to 7,805, about 0.5% below its 52-week high, the Nasdaq fell 0.15% to 27,205 and the Dow fell 0.35% to 51,670; the VIX rose to 15.25. Chip stocks declined after South Korea's KOSPI fell sharply and China's ChangXin Memory Technologies announced progress on a more space-efficient memory design. Large banks opened the third-quarter season with a split result: JPMorgan's profit rose 6% to $15.3 billion but its earnings per share of $5.57 fell short of the $5.90 forecast, while Goldman Sachs beat expectations. Brent eased about 0.5% to roughly $106 a barrel as investors weighed prospects for Russian diesel supply against the Saudi–Houthi conflict, and the 10-year Treasury yield stood near 5.22%, down from 5.24% on Friday. September CPI arrives Wednesday. IBIT rose 0.58% and ETHA fell 0.47%.

The Dividend Strategy rose 0.23%, behind DVY's 0.44% gain by 0.21 point and ahead of SPY's 0.01% decline by 0.24 point, with fourteen of twenty-five holdings higher. Nutrien was the largest contributor, rising 2.49% to $69.69 and adding about 0.10 point, and NatWest rose 2.38% to $17.65 and added about 0.09 point; Qualcomm rose 1.45%, adding about 0.07 point. Caterpillar fell 3.34% to $772.70, subtracting about 0.08 point, and Lam Research fell 2.73% to $301.11, subtracting about 0.07 point as semiconductor names declined; Lockheed Martin fell 1.57%, subtracting about 0.06 point.

A session that trades flat at the index level while sector moves offset one another tends to reward portfolios built across sleeves. Owners of durable, cash-generative businesses tend to look through the rotation. Think Like an Owner.
