THE SESSION

Stocks fell sharply on Thursday as chip and data-center shares led a broad selloff, reversing the post-midterm rally, and the Nasdaq closed in correction territory. The S&P 500 fell 4.33% to 7,356, the Nasdaq fell 5.50% to 24,321 — 11.9% below its Oct. 6 record close — and the Dow fell 3.44% to 51,523; the VIX rose to 27.59 from 16.61. The Philadelphia Semiconductor Index fell as much as 11% during the session, its worst showing since March 2020, as investors questioned the pace and financing of the AI buildout after Democrats won Congress and ballot initiatives passed that stand to limit data-center construction. Brent rose 4.09% to $98.49 a barrel as tanker attacks in the Strait of Hormuz renewed supply worries. The 10-year Treasury yield eased to about 4.88%. Cleveland Fed President Beth Hammack repeated her call for smaller, more frequent rate increases, and traders put December hike odds near 70%. IBIT fell 5.07% and ETHA fell 7.25%.

The Dividend Strategy fell 3.42%, behind DVY's 1.71% decline by 1.71 points and ahead of SPY's 4.39% decline by 0.97 point, with four of twenty-five holdings higher and twenty-one lower. ADP rose 1.19% and added about 0.08 point, Waste Management rose 1.17% and added about 0.07 point, and Old Republic rose 1.08%, adding about 0.04 point. Broadcom fell 10.43% and subtracted about 0.66 point, Qualcomm fell 9.49% and subtracted about 0.44 point after handset revenue fell 26%, and Lam Research fell 16.36%, subtracting about 0.41 point.
